200 Products To Make From Your Photos

Introduction

Welcome to “202 Products To Make From Your Photos”!

I've been helping freelance photographers for several years now, through my regular weekly email newsletter and especially through my comprehensive guide to freelance digital photography, “Sell Your Digital Photos”. And one of the most creative ways I have found to earn money from your photos is to create a range of products from your photos.

And of course many photographers love to make products from their photos to give away to their family and friends.

This ebook details more than two hundred different products you can make from your photos, and I inform you where you can source the products. Some products are available from many sources but there are also quite a number of unique product ideas that I could only find available from one source. I've included plenty of sources from around the world, especially from North America, Europe and UK, Australia and New Zealand. But many other countries are represented too.

Using the resources in this ebook you can create an entire range of your own customized photo products.

So let's get started!

In the next chapter I'll explain how you can make money with these products. If you only want to make products to give away as gifts you might want to skip the next chapter.

As I stated in our introduction one of the most creative ways to earn money from your photos is to create a range of products from your photos. And there are many ways to turn those shots into cash...

- Do you live near a popular tourist site with majestic scenery? Shoot some spectacular photographs and turn them into jigsaw puzzles or t-shirts so your visitors will go away with a souvenir they will cherish for years.
- You don't live near a tourist site? Then photograph your area anyway, and make up some beautiful framed or canvas prints. Do a deal with your local coffee shop – you'll provide free wall art to them, provided they include a price tag in case a customer wants to buy one of the prints.
- Set up your own web site selling your prints, and other products. Give out the web site address to everyone you know. If your photography products are very relevant to your town, then mail out some fliers or a postcard with your business details and web site address.
- Work with one of the sources listed in this guide where you can maintain your own “store” on their web site.
- Are you not afraid of knocking on doors? Or paying someone else to? Then you could sell your photography products door to door.
- Selling high-priced prints for the wall? It may be worth taking out an advertisement in your local paper.

200 Products To Make From Your Photos

As you can see there are lots of ways you could sell your range of photography products. Now consider all the products you could make and you have a whole range of possibilities.

Finally if you are on a tight budget, then photography products are ideal, and I'll tell you why. With photography products you can design a wide variety of products with zero upfront costs and zero inventory investment. Imagine that! With some of the sources in this book the products will be made to order as your customers purchase them from your online store.

I hope this has your mind buzzing with ideas. In the following section I will show you more than two hundred products you can make with your photos, and where to get them from.

200 Products To Make From Your Photos

The following list shows more than two hundred different products you can make from your photos. Sometimes there is a live link direct to the source. Sometimes, however, when the supplier has different web sites for different countries, I link you to our Sources section so you can choose which site is most appropriate.

Suppliers in this Guide

There are around 28 suppliers listed in this guide and together they have operations in around 26 countries. So wherever you are, I think you will find most of the products in this guide in your country or somewhere nearby.

The list of products in the previous section may not be entirely accurate by the time you read this. That is because suppliers decide to add new products and drop less popular products all of the time. So if it is a while since our last update, expect some differences. That is also why I have tried to list multiple sources for as many products as possible.

Please also note that some web sites of the same supplier or source may be different from country to country. They may only offer some product lines in particular countries, but not others.

Here is a breakdown of the main supplies listed in this book and – as far as I could tell – the countries that they operate in or have special web sites for.
